FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE:

NEW KITCHENAID® PRO LINE® SERIES CORDLESS HAND BLENDER OFFERS MORE OF A GOOD THING

CHICAGO (March 4, 2013) – With the introduction of its new Pro Line® Series cordless hand blender, KitchenAid offers even more flexibility in a multi-tasking kitchen tool that has migrated from professional kitchens to become a favorite among in-the-know home cooks. Designed to handle a range of cooking tasks quickly and portably, the brand’s new cordless model features a powerful 12V rechargeable lithium-ion battery that provides optimal runtime with consistent power.

“The cordless hand blender represents the best-in-class performance found in our Pro Line® Series,” notes Beth Robinson, senior manager of brand experience for KitchenAid. “The powerful, rechargeable lithium-ion battery in our cordless models runs with consistent power throughout the duration of the battery life and its light weight doesn’t add the unwanted heft that can make some cordless blenders difficult to handle.”

As versatile as corded models but easier to maneuver, the cordless model from KitchenAid features the industry’s first interchangeable bell blade assemblies. Three interchangeable blades, including an S-shaped, Multipurpose and Frother/Beater blade, simply twist off and on from the blending arm and require no additional tools for use. The blades can handle everything from emulsifying ingredients for homemade hollandaise sauce to pureeing cooked vegetables like broccoli and cauliflower directly in the pot to create a delicious homemade soup. An additional whisk attachment quickly whips egg whites or cream; a chopper attachment easily produces a quick batch of homemade pesto or homemade graham cracker crust.

Removable eight- and 13-inch blending arms offer additional flexibility for blending in deeper pots, bowls or pitchers. An included one-liter capacity BPA-free pitcher (about 4 cups) is handy for both blending and storing everything from smoothies to milkshakes. A removable pan guard fits on any of the bell blade assemblies and helps protect cookware from being scratched. Covers for each bell blade enable safe storage, and a soft grip, non-slip handle features a patented design for comfortable and controlled handling.
